■ 130-year-old eucalyptus coming down on Fourth Avenue

By MARY BROWNFIELD

FOURTH AVENUE'S 32 towering eucalyptus trees — hated by some for the mess they make and the limbs they drop on people's homes, and loved by others for their majestic stature — began coming down piece by piece last week. The city is paying Iverson Tree Service $103,825 to remove the trees, native to Australia, which were planted by some of Carmel's earliest settlers more than 100 years Balanced more than 75 feet above Fourth Avenue, a worker with Iverson's tree service used a chain saw Wednesday morning to remove a large section of an aging eucalyptus.

The 15-foot piece was lowered to the ground where it joined a growing pile of logs from the 130-year-old trees, which will make way for native species.

ago. The eucalyptus will be replaced by native species.

The work could take three months, perhaps longer, with "safety being the number one concern — not speed — due to the weight and mass of the trees, as well as their proximity to high voltage lines and homes," said acting city forester Mike Branson.

While tree removers once cut small pieces from the tops of the trees and dropped them to the ground below, they now slice off chunks about three feet in diameter and up to 15 feet long — each weighing more than a ton — and lower them to the street below.

"They start at the top and work their way down," he said. "He has a crane which really makes it a safer operation. You can take larger pieces, but these trees are enor-

■ Report: Sea Urchin, Arriola,
Hitchcock houses not historic

By TAMARA GRIPPI

THREE HOMES at the center of accusations that Carmel isn't doing enough to protect its historic buildings are noticeably absent from a preservation expert's survey of the town.

Consultant Kent Seavey's list, released last month, is interesting reading not only for the architectural gems he identified, but also for those buildings not included — Sea Urchin and Periwinkle, Hitchcock House and the Gus Arriola House.

All three homes became the subject of an aggressive campaign by Enid Sales — including lawsuits and appeals to the California Coastal Commission — to stop them from being replaced with new buildings.

However Seavey, who served as the first historical coordinator for Monterey County and studied architectural histo-

Keeley takes redistricting complaint to Washington

By PAUL MILLER

ASSEMBLYMAN FRED Keeley, armed with "16 pounds of documents," is in the nation's capital to ask Justice Department officials to thwart a California redistricting plan that could cost Keeley a seat in the state Senate.

Under federal law, any change in election districts in Monterey County must get "pre-clearance" from Washington to ensure the changes don't discriminate against protected minority groups.

But new state Senate districts drawn up last summer by Democrats in Sacramento would "over-concentrate" Latinos in one new district, while "effectively silencing" Latinos in parts of Monterey County, Keeley maintained.

The conflict is full of irony for Keeley, who was assistant Assembly speaker for the last two years and was considered a rising star in the California Democratic Party.

With his party 100 percent in control of state government for the first time since 1978, Keeley seemed a shoo-in to take Bruce McPherson's seat in the senate in 2004.

But party leaders left Keeley out in the cold, preferring to protect Democratic incumbents in other districts.

So Keeley headed to Washington this week to ask a Republican Justice Department to save him from his own party.

McPherson's district — the 15th — includes Monterey and Santa Cruz counties and part of Santa Clara County.

But the redistricting split Santa Cruz County from Monterey and further divided each county, effectively forcing Keeley to run in a district dominated by Santa Clara County, where he would be hard pressed to

'No parking' not good enough for state coastal commission

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THERE CAN be no parking restrictions on Scenic Road unless the California Coastal Commission decides otherwise, coastal enforcement officer Sharif Traylor said in an Oct. 23 letter to the city. Carmel has until Nov. 30 to take down all the signs limiting parking on Scenic after dark or face stiff penalties.

The letter is the latest in a year-and-a-half-long debate over Carmel's 17-year-old policy of limiting parking in the area after sunset. Seeking to appease the commission's staff by making the rules apply to all, the city removed the small "except by special permit" signs in August. But by retaining the "No Parking 30 Minutes After Sunset to 5:30 a.m." signs, Carmel remains in violation, according to Traylor.

In order to avoid formal enforcement action, including court-imposed penalties and the issuance of a cease-and-desist order, the city must "immediately" remove the signs, provide proof of the removal to the commission's district enforcement officer by Nov. 30, and "submit a complete Coastal Development Permit application for any parking program and/or signage installation that the city would like to pursue," according to the letter.

Once an application is submitted and deemed complete, coastal staff "is willing to consider recommending approval of a limited overnight restriction — 2 a.m. to 4 a.m. — for the general public on Scenic Road."

Principal planner Brian Roseth told the Carmel Planning Commission Oct. 30 that

SPECIAL DELIVERY

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A FULLY loaded Sierra Sprngs water truck careened into a parked car and ran over a liquidambar tree before coming to rest against a giant Monterey pine in front of the Carmel Paint & Decorating Center this week. The unoccupied truck had rolled away, driverless, from its parking spot on Junipero.

"I was mixing paint and I heard a crash — I thought it was the disposal people at first," said store owner Gary Doubledee. "I looked up and saw it bouncing over the curb. I thought it was coming into the store."

Two ladies had been standing just inside the floor-to-ceiling window when the accident occurred about 10:30 a.m., according to

Doubledee. "The driver came out and saw four eyes about this big looking back at him."

According to Carmel Police Officer Mel Mukai, 31-year-old Salinas truck driver Montie Burns said he parked the delivery truck and set the emergency brake before entering the nearby dry cleaners. The parked car, owned by a Carmel resident, suffered moderate damage, but the accident caused "devastation to the liquidambar," Mukai said. The city forester responded from his office one block away to evaluate the damage, and said the tree will be replaced. The pine tree withstood the blow.

"I'm just glad he curbed his wheels," Mukai said.

A Sierra Springs water truck minus its driver plowed into a parked car before mashing its front end into a large Monterey pine on Junipero this week. The stout tree probably prevented the truck from crashing through a floor-to-ceiling window and two women standing on the other side. The driver moved water bottles into a van for delivery before the truck was towed.

Comstock buff questions historic merit of the Tuck Box

By TAMARA GRIPPI

THE TUCK Box's claim to fame as one of Carmel's most important historic buildings, taken for granted by most of the town, is now being questioned by an architecture buff whose own Comstock cottage was the first on the city's list of historic homes.

Jon Hagstrom has spent years studying Hugh Comstock's work. He said the Tuck Box was so extensively damaged by an arson fire in 1987 that it cannot be considered a 1926 original.

Hagstrom contended the restoration after the fire remains true to Comstock's design, but not his craftsmanship. "I'm a Comstock aficionado and the workmanship is not Hugh's," Hagstrom said.

Important elements of the Tuck Box, including the plastering, timbers, roof and even the support beams, were not constructed in the Comstock fashion, he said.

"The whole place is totally replastered and not with the technique Comstock used. The new timbers were implanted with a router and the ones Comstock did were hand-hewn."

Preservation specialist Kent Seavey, who recently completed an historic survey of the entire town, acknowledged Hagstrom's point, but maintained that the Tuck Box's importance to Carmel has not been undermined.

"Indeed, Comstock did not bring it back — he was long gone [at the time of the fire]," Seavey said. "But if you look at the building, it conveys a sense of time and place, feeling and association. It still has its character-defining features."

Phyllis Yelusich, whose sister, Aileen Hillbun, owned the quaint Carmel restaurant at the time of the fire, said the Tuck Box remains the same classic Carmel building.

"It's identical," said Yelusich, who still works at the Tuck Box. "We had the plans — it's all the same. The beams in the ceiling and dining room were all done by hand by builder David Burdge."

Gail Hillbun, daughter of the former owner, said the damage of the 1987 fire mainly gutted the interior. Repairs included replastering the inside, replacing beams and rebuilding the chimney.

Another fire in 1988 virtually destroyed the gift shop behind the Tuck Box. But the gift shop is not a Comstock. It was designed and built in 1929 by Pedro J. Lemos of Palo Alto. It has since been reconstructed.

Although both fires were believed to be arson, no one was ever arrested.

Seavey said no one is trying to cover up the fact that the Tuck Box was changed, and the reconstruction will be documented. Several other buildings on the list of historic properties, including virtually all commercial buildings downtown, have also been changed over the years.

"In the instances where the changes are respectful of the original intent and meet the essence of the Secretary of Interior's standards for rehabilitation and restoration, they hold up," he said.

Hagstrom would like some kind of distinction made between original buildings and those that have been substantially rebuilt — even in the image of the original.

"It's wrong to represent it as a Comstock," he said. "But I have no problem calling it a Comstock recreation."

Seavey, however, said the Tuck Box is still the quintessential image of Carmel.

"I've been here since 1966 and it still says it's the Tuck Box to me," Seavey said. "If you were around in 1927 and turned the corner today, would you say, 'What the hell is that?' or would you say, 'That's the Tuck Box.'?"

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Little is known about how the body adjusts to temperature changes. Some researchers say normal aging may affect the body's ability to adjust to cold while others believe lifestyle habits or medical conditions are responsible. Certain lifestyle changes can help you stay warmer. Exercise regularly to generate more body heat. Limit alcohol because it lowers the body's ability to retain heat. Dress appropriately for weather and check the thermostat to maintain comfort. Older people are more likely to develop hypothermia than younger people. If you feel frightfully cold and are shivering, wrap yourself in a blanket and go to the local emergency room.

Madeline Nolan has seasonal jobs. At 77, she wouldn't think of doing it any other way. In the winter, she works as a teaching assistant at a local kindergarten. She considers the kids extended family to her eleven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. In summer months, Madeline is a gate attendant at a private beach, checking beach stickers and making sure everyone abides by the rules. For Madeline, life is always "a day at the beach." Beaded flag pins sell like hot cakes at city hall

FLAG FERVOR continued to rake in dollars for the American Red Cross this week, thanks to a few busy souls at Carmel Carmel City Hall on Monte Verde between Ocean and Seventh is still selling eye-catching American flag pins.

City Hall who have been spending their free time making eye-catching American flag pins out of safety pins and beads. Administrative coordinator Cheryl Panattoni, who came up with the idea of making the pins after spying the design in a local store, said city hall crew has raised more than $3,100 for the local Red Cross chapter by selling the pins for a minimum $10 donation each. Panattoni said she has no idea how many pins they have distributed since they began making them following the Sept. 11 attacks, but that people snapped up 60 last week alone.

"We are still are getting calls and people coming in because they see them on someone," she said. "So we're still making them."

WATER GOAL MISSED — BUT JUST BARELY

By PAUL MILLER

THANKS TO last-minute appeals from Cal-Am water officials for conservation — and a healthy dose of rain this week — Peninsula residents exceeded their water goal in October by just 3.5 percent.

"We were supposed to be at 1,379 acre-feet for the whole month, but at the end of the month we had used 1,428," said Wayne Morgan, interim manager of Cal-Am. "We're very happy with the positive results we got when we asked for conservation, but we still came up a bit short."

Morgan said he'd be meeting Friday with officials at the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District to determine if special water conservation rates should be instituted right away. Such rates, last invoked in 2000, would penalize heavy users.

Last week, Cal-Am vice president Judy Almond said a MPWMD ordinance requires the company to begin charging conservation rates if water use exceeds the October allotment. She said Cal-Am would ask the California Public Utilities Commission to approve the rates right away if the final numbers for October weren't within state limits.

But Morgan said the October numbers were close enough to the goal that the conservation rates could be delayed.

The daily target in October was 44 acre-feet. (An acre-foot is 325,851 gallons.) For the first three weeks of the month, actual use was more than 47 acre-feet per day. But then, with rain on the 30th, water use fell to just 37.5 acre-feet, and has stayed at about that level since.

"We'll continue to monitor the situation day-by-day," Morgan said. "If it gets dry again, we can make a decision then. On the other hand, if we have more rain and we get below the yearly target, maybe we won't have to go to conservation rates."

He reiterated Cal-Am's appeal that its customers conserve water as much as possible, especially by eliminating landscape irrigation.

Commissioners cry out for comments on crucial coastal plan

By MARY BROWNFIELD

IN A town where residents have packed city hall for hours commenting on a single remodel project, and the debate over the "soup law" moved people to protest in the streets, why doesn't anybody seem to care about the comprehensive, long overdue Local Coastal Program?

Carmel planning commissioners are dismayed that only a handful of people have commented at the public hearings for the LCP, which covers almost every aspect of development and activity in the city, from signs on businesses downtown to what plants Scenic Road residents should have in their yards. It includes entirely new sections of policy — such as what "character resources" are and how they should be protected — as well as changes to laws already on the books.

It regulates beach access, use and development of land throughout the city and — once the city's historic preservation ordinance and element are adopted — will also govern what is done with the city's historic buildings.

The LCP was supposed to be finished in 1981. Recently, the city has come under blistering criticism — accompanied by threats of a permit moratorium — from the California Coastal Commission for never having completed it.

Nevertheless, just a few members of the public showed up at the Oct. 3 hearing on the document, the fifth held on the program. The evening's discussions focused on beach fires, parking on Scenic and the exact location of a trail to provide northern beach access.

"It's not surprising that the issues being discussed are the issues directly related to the beach," principal planner Brian Roseth told The Pine Cone. "That is where the rubber meets the road. The focus of any coastal plan is the issues of beach access and beach use, and balancing the public's right to use the beach with the residential and environmental interests."

The next opportunity to comment on the LCP at the planning commission will be Nov. 8 at 4 p.m. A special meeting on the topic will be heard by the city council Nov. 15 and comments there will be incorporated in another planning commission hearing Nov. 27, at which commissioners will decide whether to recommend adopting the LCP.

Commissioner Robin Wilson entreated the public to attend the discussions.

"This is an extraordinarily interesting and important document," he said. "I'm happy to meet on the eighth if people have read the darn thing and are ready to comment on it, but I don't want to meet if we're always going to hear from the same people."

So far, the LCP includes more than 800 pages. Copies-by-the-Sea sells copies of the draft and the appendices, which include documents such as the Forest Management Plan and the Beach Master Plan. Roseth said he believes residents may be intimidated by the bulk of the LCP.

Courageous citizens can take a look at copies in the library, at city hall, or on the city's website at www.carmel-california.com. Anyone who thumbs through them should note the editing style: strikethrough indicates existing language that will be removed; anything underlined is new. In addition, the planning department keeps a running list of current edits, copies of which are free to the public at city hall.

"I do not want to hear anybody say they weren't given the opportunity to speak — this is what, our fifth meeting?" chair Frank Wasko commented. "We are begging for comments."

Tassajara resident killed on Carmel Valley Road

TWENTY-TWO-year-old Tassajara resident Marc Bishop died in a car accident on Carmel Valley Road Oct. 20 when his 1988 Toyota pickup overturned.

Bishop was driving almost 50 mph eastbound on the twisty portion of Carmel Valley Road near the Tassajara turnoff when he crossed over the center lane, corrected to the right and lost control of the vehicle, according to CHP officer Vinnie Smith.

"It skidded off the roadway edge, up the embankment and into a tree," he said. Bishop was not wearing a seatbelt and was ejected through the windshield. He died at the scene.

The accident was not discovered until after daylight Oct. 21, when a passing motorist saw the truck in the trees and notified authorities.

An autopsy conducted by the Monterey County Coroner's Office Oct. 22 determined Bishop died of subdural hematoma and blunt force head injuries. Alcohol may have been a factor.

Comments sought on multi-billion-dollar transportation plan

By MARY BROWNFIELD

FOUR BILLION dollars. That's how much Monterey County needs for transportation projects in the next 20 years, according to the 2002 draft Regional Transportation Plan released by the Transportation Agency for Monterey County.

"It's going to be very, very difficult to support even the minimum requirements in the county," without finding plenty of new money, according to Dick Ely of the TAMC board.

In the Carmel vicinity, the RTP projects include $90.7 million for Highway 1 between Carpenter Street and Pitkin's Curve south of Big Sur; $5.2 million on Carmel Valley Road, including intersection improvements, a bike path and replacement of the Schulte Road bridge; and $304,000 for bike lanes through Pebble Beach and Carmel.

It predicts Carmel will need $5.3 million for building bicycle/pedestrian projects, paving streets, improving intersections, buying electric vehicles for city workers, installing streetscaping on San Carlos and building a park-and-ride lot near Highway 1 and Rio Road.

The county can count on $2.4 to $2.6 billion — mostly in state and federal tax money — over the next two decades, but will probably have to pass new taxes for the rest.

The RTP posed several options for new or increased taxes, including: a local transportation sales tax, a regional transportation impact fee on new development, an additional gas tax, a local vehicle license fee, an assessment district fee similar to the Carmel Valley program that requires developers to pay fees for C.V. Road safety improvements, a Mello-Roos community facilities district requiring a voter-approved tax to pay back municipal bonds, a hotel tax, and extra fees for those who drive or use public transit during rush hour.

Monterey County Public Works Director Lew Bauman said many officials may balk at more developer fees.

"A lot of jurisdictions already have a local traffic impact fee ordinance, and when you expand that to include regional and state roads, it may become too burdensome on the development community," he said. "We want to ensure there's a level playing field — if some jurisdictions levy fees and others don't, development will be attracted to areas that have a lower fee structure."

The jurisdictions represented by TAMC appear to agree on the plan and project list, according to Bauman, but more discussion will occur among the cities, the county and staff before TAMC considers adopting it Dec. 5.

The agency is also seeking public input on the RTP and project list, with comments due Nov. 12. Comments may be submitted in writing to TAMC, 55-B Plaza Circle, Salinas, CA 93901 or by e-mail to info@tamcmonterey.org

STEVENSON, YORK STUDENTS SEMIFINALISTS IN NATIONAL MERIT SCHOLARSHIP QUEST

OUT OF the 1.2 million students who tried their hands at becoming National Merit Scholars this year, five Robert Louis Stevenson students and ten from York School have been named among the 16,000 semifinalists nationwide.

And depending on their academic progress through the winter, the semi-finalists may receive $2,500 scholarships to be used toward furthering their education.

"It's a national program that considers academic excellence, and the kids are compared to each other nationwide," said Stevenson spokesperson Amy White.

Finalists from Stevenson include Bryan Austin, Michael Chan, Cora Gorman, William Niebling and Morgan Sellers. From York, Irene Bonner of Pacific Grove, Stephen Crisan of Pebble Beach, Devin Kehl of Carmel and Eugene Kang, Gabe Klapman, Eoghan McGreevy-Stafford, Sterling Nelson, Alec Spiegel, Will Swanson and Catherine Trammell were named semifinalists.

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation sends references to two colleges or universities of the scholars' choice — an achievement many institutions highly value, according to White.

The semifinalists will learn in February if they have advanced to the finalist standing and be eligible for scholar-

More redwoods for Andrew Molera

THE BIG SUR Land Trust this week transferred 17 acres of redwood- and oak-studded land to the California Department of Parks and Recreation.

The land, which will be added to Andrew Molera State Park, includes a quarter-mile of the Big Sur River and is home to eagles, hawks and numerous other wildlife species, according to Corey Brown, executive director of the BSIT. It is located just south of the park, on the west side of Highway 1. Acquisition of the land was funded by a $560,000 grant from Caltrans and a $175,000 donation from the Save the Redwoods League.

Far from home, CHS grad premieres Paris work

By PAUL MILLER

TWENTY YEARS ago she was a brilliant Carmel High student, on her way to graduating at 15 before heading to Harvard for a B.A. and a Ph.D. in medieval literature.

Last week, Leslie Downer premiered a unique production on a barge in the River Seine before a packed house assembled to hear music from the central Asian nation of Tajikistan.

"Into the Flame," based on the works of 13th-century Persian poet Jalaluddin Rumi featured English and French actors, Iranian and Spanish dancers and a Tajik singer.

"The show was written and directed, somewhat by default as she is the only person who speaks all the necessary languages, by the American librettist Leslie Dunton-Downer who lives in Paris in a former foundry where one hand of the Statue of Liberty was cast," said the International Herald Tribune last weekend.

Downer, who in the 1970s wrote several expressive columns for The Pine Cone about her youthful travels through Europe, set off for Central Asia last fall to research local languages and music for an opera she had been commissioned to write for the opening of the new Chicago opera house.

"I really just wanted to see the mountains and hear the wolves screaming all night long, but I also wanted to learn about musical traditions. I listened to about 200 musicians in those remote valleys," Downer said. One of them was 25-year-old Aqnazar Alovatov, whose voice she described as "weightless and huge and highly ornamented."

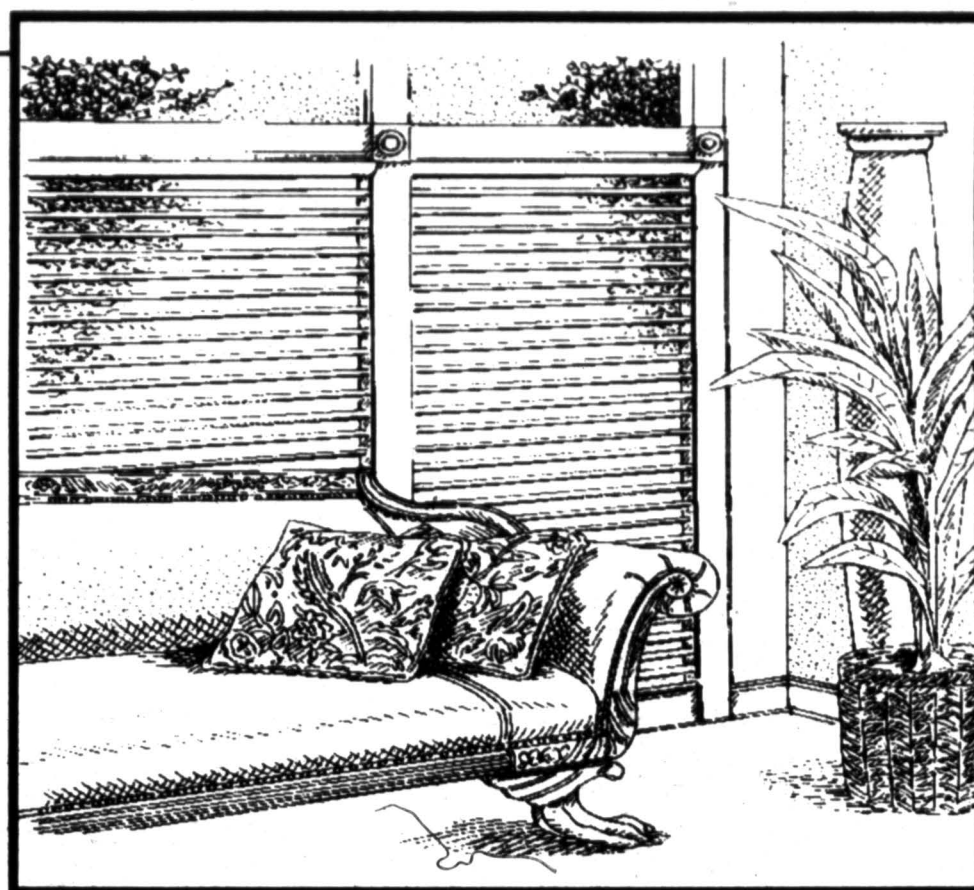

Dropping the Chicago project, she wrote "Into the Flame" for Alovatov. With the world's attention suddenly focused on Tajikistan's neighbor, Afghanistan, the production drew packed houses in Paris last weekend.

Downer's grandmother, Maggie Downer of Carmel, credits former CHS history teacher Buzz Rainer for getting Leslie started on her world-wide adventures. "He was her favorite teacher in the world," Maggie Downer said. "He took the students to Greece, and she studied Greek for weeks before going." Another mentor to Leslie Downer was Morgan Stock of the MPC theater department who fostered her interest in the dramatic arts, her grandmother said.

A Harvard professor reportedly called Downer his smartest student ever. Her classmates and teachers at Carmel High surely aren't surprised to hear about the unusual adventures — and accomplishments — of Leslie Downer.

All Saints returns to Carmel City Hall

By TAMARA GRIPPI

CARMEL'S PICTURESQUE City Hall — which used to be All Saints Episcopal Church — will welcome back the congregation this Sunday to celebrate a milestone: Fifty years ago, All Saints sold its tiny Monte Verde Street church to the city for $40,000 and moved to a beautiful new church on Dolores Street.

On Sunday, members of the congregation, dressed in their 1950s best, will gather at city hall with Father Carl Hansen before making a symbolic procession to their Dolores Street church.

Carmel Mayor Sue McCloud will meet them at city hall at 9:45 a.m. When the group arrives at All Saints, retired assistant bishop Richard Miller will bless the sanctuary, which was recently remodeled.

Bursting at the seams

Fifty years ago, Rector Alfred Seccombe realized he needed to do something for his little church, which was bursting at the seams.

"Of course it wasn't easy," said Hansen. "He was dealing with all of the various factions and he had quite a struggle with the bishop, who wanted a different architect."

Seccombe ultimately prevailed and architect Robert Jones was chosen to design the new church on Dolores Street. "He wanted a church that was appropriate for the uniqueness of Carmel," Hansen said.

Hansen is thankful to have a church with "contemporary architecture that stands the test of time."

And the little former church on Monte Verde has served the city well for the last 50 years.

"A lot of people don't realize the reason the council chamber looks the way it does is that it was a church," said McCloud. "And it's where I went to church as a kid."

Hansen wants his congregation to know the city hall building is still full of cherished memories. "It's a reminder that the presence of God is not tied to any place, building or religion," he said.

On Sunday, Hansen will lead his congregation in a prayer for Carmel's leaders before beginning the procession to All Saints.

The upcoming celebration should be interesting and fun, Hansen said. "It's also important in terms of our future. The character of a congregation is always determined by its history."

The original Monte Verde church, designed by architect Albert Cauldwell, was built in 1912 by M.J. Murphy.

COUNTDOWN BEGINS TO GREAT WINE ESCAPE KICK-OFF

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

THE GREAT Wine Escape Weekend is fast approaching, coming to the Monterey Peninsula on Thursday, Nov. 8 and continuing through Sunday, Nov. 11.

This is a much-anticipated long weekend for wine lovers and scholars, with a plethora of events scheduled on the peninsula during the four days.

The purpose of the fifth annual Escape, sponsored by the Monterey County Vintners & Growers Association, is to introduce Monterey County's wines to the uninitiated, sample new releases for dyed-in-the-wool oenophiles and introduce the public to winemakers who are generally hidden away in wine cellars practicing their arcane craft. And let's face it — the Escape is a fine opportunity just to have fun.

The first event is scheduled for 6 p.m. and 8 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 8 with two back-to-back jazz concerts at A Taste of Monterey, 700 Cannery Row (above The Fish Hopper), Monterey. Cost is $30, and dress is "elegantly casual."

The following day, a gold tournament will be held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Laguna Seca Golf Club, with many vintners joining in. After prizes are awarded, a luncheon will be held, followed by a wine and awards reception. Fee is $160.

Chefs Grasing and Fisher join forces

Friday, Nov. 9 will also find the Escape weekend getting down to serious business at the showcase Monterey wine auction & gala at which over 20 Monterey County vintners will pour their hand-selected wines at their host tables. Attire is formal at this gala event which will run from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. at the Monterey Bay Aquarium. Cost is $175.

Chef Kurt Grasing, of Grasing's Restaurant and Kurt's Carmel Chop House, will collaborate with Chef Tim Fisher of Bon Appetit Restaurant for the evening's cuisine.

Wines and "lifestyle packages" will be up for bid with wine expert David Reynolds as auctioneer. Dancing to Dizzy Burnett and Grover Coe's bands will fill out the evening, and participants are invited to walk around the aquarium and gaze at the remarkable live exhibits.

Saturday, Nov. 10 is set aside as winery open house day, either through self-guided tours or on a narrated bus tour of seven Salinas Valley and six Carmel Valley wineries and one Monterey winery. Tickets are available for both tour types at $30. Tours begin at 10 a.m. and conclude at 4 p.m. Buses leave the Hyatt Regency, Monterey at 9:30 a.m., returning at 3:30 p.m.

Tour ticket holders are invited to a tasting at the Hyatt, Monterey from 3 to 5:30 p.m.

Hors d'oeuvres and live music accompany the wine tasting.

Vintners to host winery dinner tables

Saturday evening is devoted to vintners and chefs winemaker dinners in 19 restaurants throughout Monterey County commencing at 7 p.m. A winery representative will be present at each dinner to discuss their vintages which will be

Three days of festivities to inaugurate first Harvest Celebration

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

CARMEL VALLEY is becoming the center of the universe, so abundant are festivals and celebrations of all kinds in that small and charming village.

Set for Friday Nov. 2 to 4 is the first Harvest Celebration presented by the C.V. Chamber of Commerce.

Commencement of the weekend-long festivities is a gala reception and dinner at Bernardus Lodge tonight, Friday, Nov. 2, starting at 6:30 with a wine and hors d'oeuvres reception. A four-course dinner follows at 7:30 p.m. An introduction of dignitaries and a key exchange with the mayor of Suze-La-Rousse, a small town in Provence, France, will take place as it becomes the sister city of Carmel Valley Village. Tickets are priced at $125 per person. Reservations can be made by calling 658-3400.

On Saturday, Nov. 3, a Carmel Valley artisans' festival will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. with a display and sale of artwork in a tent on Pilot Road. Artisans will paint on any object with feet or legs (tables, chairs, stools, etc.) brought to them.

Local businesses will showcase their services and goods from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at sidewalk sales on Carmel Valley Road, Center Street, Del Fino Place and Village Drive.

A chocolate and wine extravaganza is planned from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. with hand-made specialty chocolates presented buffet-style. Prices will vary at the Pilot Road tent location. A wine tasting is planned in the tent and throughout the village in the various winery tasting rooms.

From 6 to 10 p.m., restaurants throughout the village will team with wineries to create special menus highlighting fall cuisine paired to varietal wines.

Capping the Saturday festivities will be a live concert with acoustic guitarist Alex de Grassi at Hidden Valley Music Seminar, an institute of the arts, from 8:30 to 10:15 p.m. Tickets are $25 each. Hidden Valley is located at Carmel Valley Road at Ford Road.

On the final day of the celebration, Sunday, Nov. 4, a hometown parade will take place at 10 a.m. and various activities, held over from Saturday, will continue. A closing ceremony is slated from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. at the tent on Pilot Road.

ry at the graduate level at Stanford, doesn't think the houses meet state and national criteria for historic designation.

He explained that while the Scenic Road cottages (Sea Urchin and Periwinkle) and Gus Arriola's one-time residence on Camino Real may be contributors to the town's character, they don't make the cut as historic resources.

"My view is that Periwinkle and Sea Urchin lost their historic character when they were completely altered in the 1980s," Seavey said.

Last year, the California Coastal Commission — at the urging of Sales — denied Bill and Mary Louise Shellooes' request to demolish Sea Urchin and Periwinkle and instead told the couple they would have to preserve the cottages and include them in the design of their new home.

At their December meeting, members of the coastal commission said the cottages were historic and should be rehabilitated according to the secretary of the interior's standards for historic structures.

The Shellooes — who hired architect John Thodos to redesign their project — are still waiting for their new plans to be reviewed by the Carmel Planning Commission.

Going to the source

Seavey said Gus Arriola's former home on Camino Real shouldn't be considered historic simply because the cartoonist lived there for 11 years — especially in light of the fact that Arriola doesn't think the house played much of a role in his career.

(The cartoonist has argued that his 44-year career was established long before he lived in the Camino Real house and continued long after he moved out.)

"When you have the source there to tell you, I tend to believe the source," Seavey said.

The current owner of the Arriola house, Gary Martin, wants to raze the dilapidated building to construct his retirement home, but was turned down by the coastal commission in July largely because of the Arriola connection.

The coastal commission has since agreed to reconsider that decision after learning the city of Carmel red-tagged the house as unsafe for habitation.

Not Hitchcock House

Seavey's research shows that John Mandurrage's Hitchcock House on Mission Street, which is the subject of a lawsuit filed by Sales and her group, Friends of Carmel Cultural Heritage, may be named after the wrong person. Sales argued that house is significant because Joseph Hitchcock, an historian and descendent of early settlers to Carmel who worked for the Carmel Development Company, lived there.

"I've had long conversations with old timers who indicated basically that Joe Hitchcock never lived there," Seavey said. "My knowledge of Hitchcock when I knew him was that he was associated with Carmel Valley."

Mandurrage, who has long hoped to demolish the 1,200-square-foot house to build a residential care facility, withdrew his application from the coastal commission last month after the coastal staff recommended denial of his project.

The Carmel City Council's decision to allow Mandurrage to tear down the house was upheld in March by Monterey Superior Court Judge Robert O'Farrell.

A gray area

Throughout his research, Seavey has encountered numerous properties that are not historic, but may contribute to "community character."

"The city is working with the gray area of character, which is terribly subjective," he said. What do you do with "a cottage where nobody fancy lived and nothing important happened, but gee, it's nice?"

The best way to handle community character is to make use of the recently approved design traditions guidelines, Seavey said.

The decision on whether to preserve "character contributing" buildings is one the city can make through the design review process, he said. "My job is to deal with historic homes at the state level and on the national register."

The complete list of buildings identified as historic by Seavey begins on page 4B.

Gus Arriola doesn't think his old house is historic.

'When you have the source there to tell you, I tend to believe the source.'

he hopes the city will be able to defend the parking restrictions in its Local Coastal Program, which is in the final stages of approval by the city but which the coastal commission can alter to suit its purposes.

'Living hell'

Two vocal Scenic Road residents, Sidney Widrow and Howard Herning, staunchly defended the overnight parking ban.

"I was part of the exchange that went on for approximately eight months in '85 and the reasons were noise and drinking, and the police had problems with drugs being distributed," Herning said.

"After it was enacted, the change was dramatic — there were no cars there, there was peace again. To me it's unconscionable to change this ordinance because I feel there are still those individuals out there who once they know they can go down there and party, they will."

Widrow said many Scenic Road residents described life on Scenic as "living hell" before the parking program began.

"I remember people getting up to speak and having tears in their eyes. They would hear a noise and would find people defecating in their front yards at 2 or 3 a.m., and they would find damage to gardens also," he said.

He said opening parking on Scenic, along with the planning commission's request to remove restrictions on possession of alcohol on the beach, would create a "dangerous situation."

Those arguments were presented in a July 23 letter to coastal staffer Tami Grove, but staff decided "this information submitted by the city does not comprehensively evaluate the supply and demand for public and private parking in the vicinity of Scenic Road or the necessity for restricting public access," according to Traylor's letter.

City administrator Rich Guillen distributed copies to the city council this week. He said they will meet to discuss their response.

defeat well-known politicians from San Jose.

The redistricting changes would "lessen the ability of the politically vibrant Latino community [in Monterey County] to elect a candidate of their choice . . . causing irreparable harm in the future," Keeley said. Under the Voting Rights Act, he maintained, "the strength of the Latino community must not be diluted."

If the U.S. Department of Justice finds the new districts discriminate against protected minority groups, the legislature would have to redraw them.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON THE HISTORIC PRESERVATION PROGRAM

The Planning Commission of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea will hold a public hearing on the proposed Historic Preservation Program. Documents that will be reviewed include the draft Historic Preservation Element of the General Plan, the Historic Preservation Ordinance and the Environmental Impact Report prepared to evaluate the program. Your input on these important documents is invited and welcome. The Planning Commission will consider both oral and written public comments. The hearing will take place on 28 November 2001 at 4:00 p.m. at City Hall (east side of Monte Verde Street between Ocean and Seventh Avenues). The Commission will be making recommendations to the City Council. The City Council will hold a public hearing on these documents on 6 December 2001 at 5:00 p.m. at City Hall.

Prior to the Commission's public hearing, the Historic Preservation Committee will discuss the proposed program on 19 November 2001 at 4:00 p.m. at City Hall. The Committee will be making recommendations to the Planning Commission and City Council at this meeting.

Upon adoption by the City Council, the Historic Preservation Program will establish goals, objectives, and policies as well as implementing ordinances on the identification, preservation and restoration of historic resources. Specific policies and regulations would be established that address remodeling, additions and demolitions. As proposed, the program would require the protection of historic resources of State or National significance and would encourage the voluntary preservation of historic resources of local significance.

Copies of both documents are available for review at City Hall and at the Harrison Memorial Library. Copies may be purchased at Copies-by-the-Sea located in Del Dono Court at the southwest corner of Dolores Street and Fifth Avenue.

M I L E S T O N E S

A memorial service is planned Saturday, Dec. 1 for long-time Carmel community activist JANE S. MAYER, who died Oct. 14, at the age of 89 in Carmel. Wife of distinguished writer, journalist, and lecturer Milton S. Mayer, she had lived in Carmel for 50 years. Mrs. Mayer was 89.

Born Dorothy Jane Stoddard in Joplin, Mo., she grew up in Seattle. She attended the University of Washington before beginning a 10-year career in fashion. She was fashion coordinator and consultant for several large department stores and lectured on fashion on college campuses and on the radio.

Married to Robert Franklin Scully from 1940 to 1947, she had two sons, Rock and Dicken, who were both raised and have recently returned to live in Carmel.

She married Milton Mayer in 1947, and together they produced the "Voices of Europe" radio broadcasts conducting interviews throughout Europe. For many years they co-lead Great Books Discussion Seminars in Europe and America on university campuses as well as in Carmel.

As lifelong civil libertarians and pacifists, the Mayers fought intolerance, bigotry, racism and overzealous nationalism wherever they found it. As activists for peace and disarmament during the cold war, they both represented the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers) to the World Council of Churches and many international peace conferences.

The family moved to Carmel in 1951. Long concerned with the rapid growth of tourism and the changing face and spirit of Carmel, Mrs. Mayer was one of the founding members of the Carmel Residents Association and a member of the Carmel General Plan Committee. She was also a member of the Historic Preservation Committee of the City of Carmel as well as a board member of the Cherry Foundation. She was a tireless advocate for the conservation of Carmel's unique character.

Milton Mayer died in 1986, and Mrs. Mayer is survived by her two step-daughters, Julie Vognar of Berkeley and Amanda Stinchecum of Brooklyn, N.Y., and by her two sons, Rock and Richard of Carmel.

Mrs. Mayer's memorial will begin at 11 a.m. Dec. 1 at the Unitarian Universalist Church, 490 Aguajito Road, Carmel.

Contributions are directed to the American Friends Service Committee, 1501 Cherry St., Philadelphia, Pa. 19102

ISABEL BOEKENOOGEN TAVERNETTI, a friend and contemporary of John Steinbeck, died Oct. 9 at age 93.

Born in San Francisco, she graduated from San Jose Teachers College in 1930 and taught elementary school in Salinas and at Carmel's Bay School until her first child was born. She was the only female team member in the history of the Monterey County Equestrian Polo Team, president of the Delphian Study Club, artist, sculptor and lecturer.

Mrs. Tavernetti served 10 years on the Monterey County Library Commission and was its president during the period of fundraising for the building of the present John Steinbeck Library in Salinas. After her move with her family to Pebble Beach, she was board secretary of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art and a member of the Carmel Art Association, Monterey Peninsula Art Group Nine, Pacific Grove Art Center, North Coast Art Association, Salinas Fine Arts, and a docent at La Mirada Castro Adobe Historical Museum.

She was the wife of the leading agricultural banker in California for four decades, the late Roland Tavernetti. Mrs. Tavernetti is survived by her sons, Richard Tavernetti, M.D., an orthopedic surgeon in San Francisco; and Dennis Tavernetti, an industrialist in South Carolina. She is also survived by six grandchildren.

Memorial contributions are suggested to the Monterey Museum of Art.

LINA J. CON of Del Mesa Carmel, died Oct. 29. She was 86.

Born in Amsterdam, The Netherlands, she immigrated to the United States with husband Jacques in 1958, living in New York and New Jersey. In 1971, they returned to The Netherlands, and after her husband's death Mrs. Con returned to the States, moving to Del Mesa Carmel in 1989.

She was a survivor of the Holocaust and spent several years in hiding during Nazi occupation of The Netherlands during World War II. She is the author of "7-70," a biographical account of the Holocaust years, her family's struggle for survival and her life after the war.

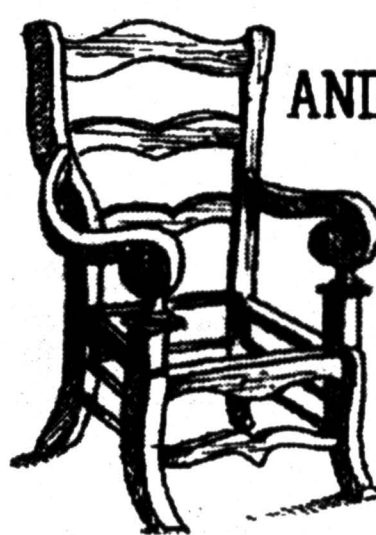

Mrs. Con spent much of her time volunteering for libraries and numerous charitable organizations. She was an avid reader, member of several literary classes and study groups and a supporter and subscriber of local arts series.

She was a founder of Magic Circle Center for the Arts in Carmel Valley Village and belonged to the Carmel Foundation and Hadassah.

She is survived by her daughters, Elsa of Carmel Valley and Lily Harvitt of New York; three grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests any donations be sent to one of Mrs. Con's favorite charities, the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum, 100 Raoul Wallenberg Place SW, Washington, D.C. 20024-2126, Attention: Membership Department, or a charity of your choice.

YELLOW BRICK ROAD HONORS SUPER HELPERS

THE YELLOW Brick Road Benefit Shop's volunteer luncheon at Rancho Cañada, chaired by Bev Ambort, had the biggest YBR crowd ever, included an "Antiques Roadshow," courtesy of antiques dealer Anna Beck . . . Longtime treasurer Mabel Thompson was one of those honored . . . Bob Wahl won the bid on an antique American eagle just donated . . . Store manager Mark Christ got a job offer for his auctioneering skills . . . Guests included Betty Kendall (of Kendall Oil), and Sharon Myler, whose hubby is a noted cardiac surgeon. "I had no idea of the outreach of this group," she said, promising from here onwards to donate and shop YBR . . . Deborah Smith of Shelter Outreach Plus and artist Bill Stone (there with wife Nancy) often work together on YBR's window dressing . . . Board member Sandy Rensvold's sister, volunteer Betsy Dunaway, invited guest Judy Obink. "When guests come, they're stunned by the turnout and devotion," said Sandy. "It's a great way to recruit workers and encourage donations." Sandy, by the way, is writing about collecting pueblo pottery . . .

It was a healthy process, this freedom of expression . . .

But now?

"Auto"—anything for a camera, all of which are anointed as such in some form or manner, is really synonymous with: "I ain't takin' it if it ain't right!"

Never mind the 150 guests watching the whole mortifying attempt by the flustered photographer at persuading it otherwise.

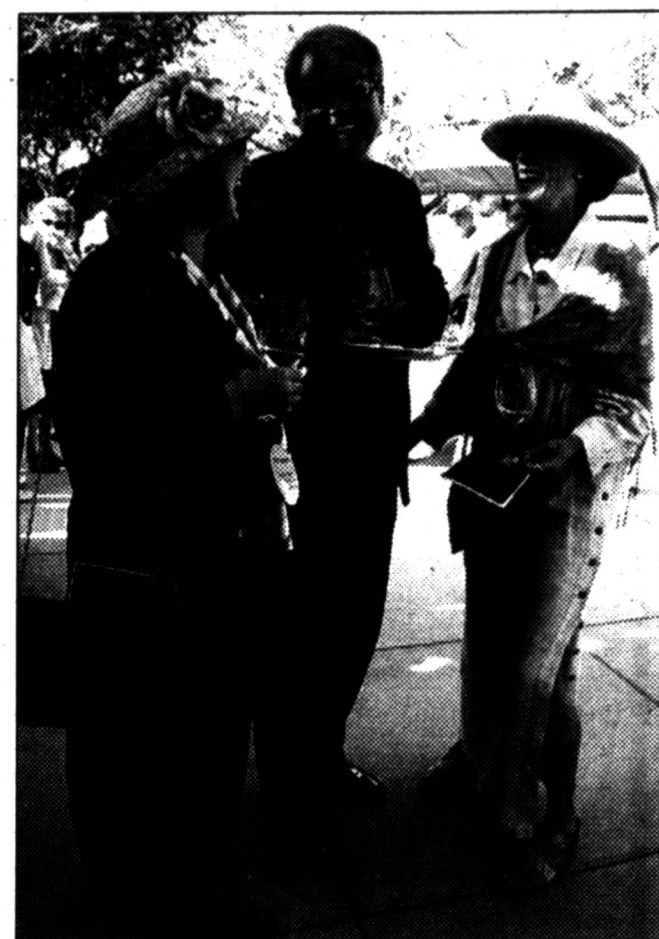

Never mind the half-dozen VIPs glaring with frozen smiles, impatiently waiting for the click so they can loosen up and return to their seats.

The camera knows this is a free country.

And it knows it can do anything it wants.

"Off to the Races!" was the theme at the annual CBA Taste of Carmel at Bernardus, with the call for highly creative hats producing a number of eye-popping sights . . . CBA president Larry Hoover's mom Shirley came from Phoenix armed with her hat . . . Chair Mia McKee had trusted co-chairs Bob Hale & Tom Williams to add to her efforts. Multi-media offering honors jazz master Bill Evans

TO MANY, the late Bill Evans was one of the most influential jazz pianists in the world. Over the years many tributes have been released to honor the young cutting-edge artist. This Saturday, Nov. 3, Sea Breeze jazz vocalist Karen Gallinger brings her tribute to Evans to the Jazz & Blues Company in Carmel.

Karen Gallinger

Plugged In

By Stephen L. Vagnini

A semi-chronological multi-media presentation of Evans' life and work, "Remembering Bill Evans" is also the name of Gallinger's third CD. Saturday's performance features Gallinger narrating and singing both instrumental and vocal selections backed by her trio of pianist Tom Zink, drummer Chris Wabich and bassist Larry Steen. The album features a collection of the music of Evans including "Catch the Wind" (a song Evans wrote but never recorded) plus "I Remember Bill," a beautiful tribute written by Don Sebesky.

Gallinger is a popular Southern California jazz vocalist with extraordinary range; she has been described as "stylish and sultry". Music starts at 7:30 p.m. Call 624-6431 for reservations.

Singer/songwriter Mary Anne (Randle) Anderson and multi-instrumentalist Ames

Anderson, the musical duo better known as "Simple Pleasures," will perform tonight (Nov. 2) at Tillie Gort's Cafe in Pacific Grove. The duo plays easy listening acoustic music that incorporates bluegrass, Celtic, folk, traditional and blues. Randle has released two CDs: "Beautiful Dreamer" and "Simple Pleasures," the former a collection of international jazz, the latter an acoustic album released with Ames Anderson that covers a wide spectrum of music, in her own words, "Celtic to Cowboy."

Tillie Gort's, the venerable Pacific Grove eatery, is located at 111 Central Ave. Music is from 7 to 9 p.m. Call 373-0335.

more than 300 shows a year. Tonight (Nov. 2) the group makes a stop at Sly McFly's on Cannery Row. Red, a dynamic performer, honed his chops during the 1980s performing throughout Europe. A terrific showman, Red Archibald has been called one of the best harp players around. Call 649-8050 for more information.

Simple Pleasures

At the Blue Fin Cafe & Billiards (also on Cannery Row), former Guns & Roses guitarist Gilby Clarke makes a rare local appearance with his new band Col. Parker. The group plays straight-ahead rock 'n' roll and is comprised of veteran L.A. musicians Slim Jim Phanthom on drums, bassist Muddy Stardust and keyboardist Teddy Andreadis. Flying Baby opens the show at 9 p.m. Call 375-7000 for more information.

Thursday, Nov. 8, Hawaiian slack-key masters Ledward Kaapana and Cyril Pahinui perform at a free concert from 10 a.m. to noon at the CSUMB Music Hall on Sixth Avenue. One of the world's great acoustic guitar traditions, slack-key players tune down some of their strings from the standard guitar tuning. The bass is played with the thumb while the other fingers play the melody and improvisation in a finger-picked style.

Both Kaapana and Pahinui are considered masters of Hawaiian slack-key guitar. For more information call 582-4085.

Bravissima 2002 opens with dynamic violin/harpsichord duo

THE CARMEL Bach Festival enters its third year of presenting music year-round with the Bravissima winter/spring series opening concert featuring violinist Andrew Manze and harpsichordist Richard Egarr.

Their performance begins at 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 9 at the Church in the Forest on the campus of Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach. Single tickets are $25.

The duo has won pairs of Gramophone, Edison and Cannes Classical awards for their recordings. They will perform compositions by Arcangelo Corelli, Georg Frideric Handel, J.S. Bach and Francesco Antonio Bonporti. Ticket holders are invited to an informal reception after the concert.

The musicians have performed together since 1984. Manze has been described as "the first modern superstar of the baroque violin" and "the Grapelli of the baroque." As soloist, orchestral director and chamber musician, he is a performer of violin repertoire from 1610 to 1830. He is also a conductor who teaches, writes and broadcasts about many aspects of the of the "early" music world.

Egarr, in demand as a soloist, chamber musician and conductor, has appeared on many recordings. He is director of The Academy of the Begijnhof, Amsterdam. Playing all types of historical keyboards, Egarr performs music ranging from 15th century organ intabulations to modern piano music.

Tickets are available now from the Carmel Bach Festival office by phone (624-2046), mail (P.O. Box 575, Carmel, CA 93921), fax (624-2788) or e-mail (www.bachfestival.org), or in person at Room 16, Sunset Cultural Center, Mission and 10th, Carmel.

The Bravissima series continues with Tafelmusik on Jan. 25, 2002; "Songs of Venus and Mars" featuring mezzo-soprano Catherine Robbin and bass-baritone Daniel Lichti on Feb. 16, 2002; "Angels in the Mission" on March 22, 2002 at the Carmel Mission Basilica and "Magnificat," recreating the Cozzolani Vespers at the mission on April 20, 2002.

Bach's "Tocatta and Fugue," Handel's "Harpsichord Suite in E" and a collection of sonatas are the featured pieces in the Nov. 9 Bravissima opening concert. It begins 8 p.m. at the Church in the Forest, Pebble Beach.

Boutique winemakers pair wines at four-course repast

TWO BOUTIQUE wineries — Tin House and John Kerr — both out of Santa Maria, will host a winemakers' dinner at The Gem Restaurant in Carmel-by-the-Sea at 6 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 14.

A four-course menu, prepared by Chef Joseph Lichens of The Gem will be paired to Tin House and John Kerr wines. On hand to discuss their wines will be John Kerr, and either Gregory or Alec Franks of Tin House. All of the wine will be from the 1998 vintage.

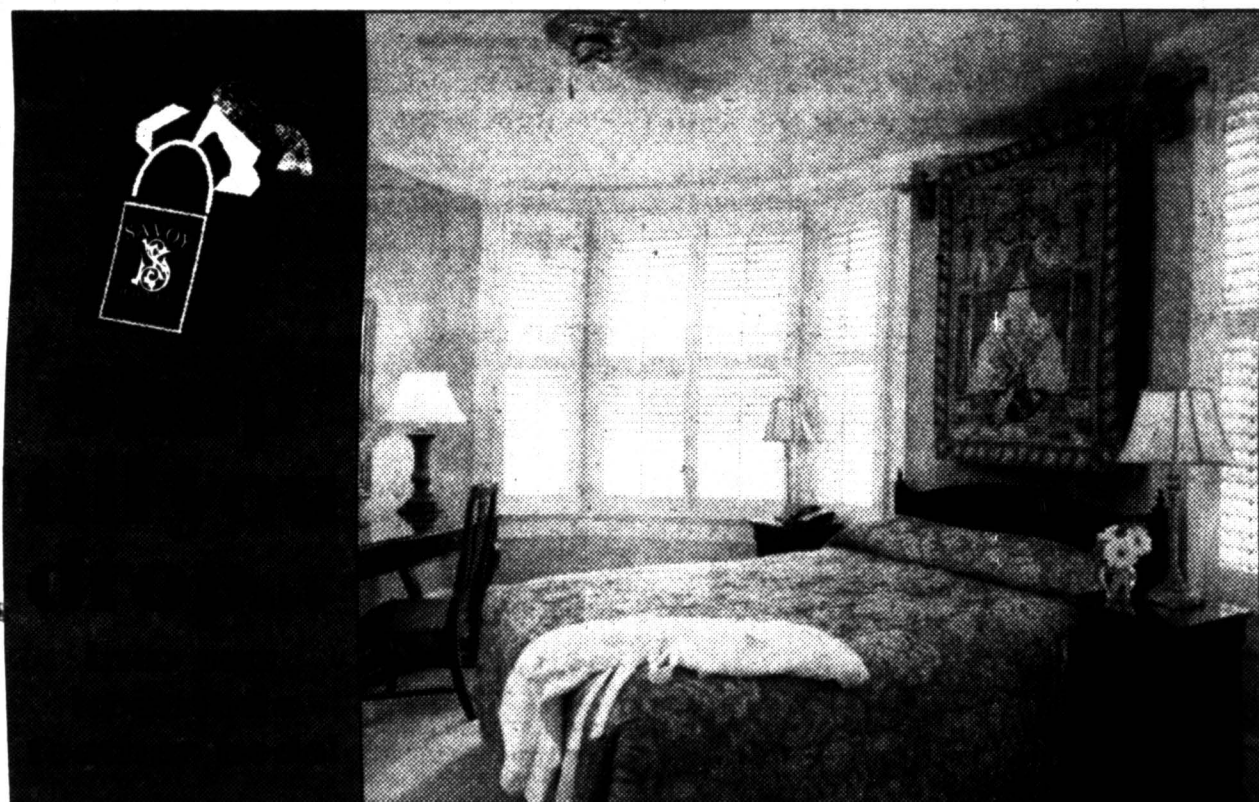

John Kerr Chardonnay will be served with an appetizer of grilled shrimp en brochette with white corn salsa, and John Kerr Syrah will accompany the cream of carrot and ginger soup.

Tin House Pinot Noir will be served with a choice of three entrées: filet mignon with a peppercorn brandy cream sauce; Chilean sea bass en papillote in a Nantua sauce; or half a duckling with pine nut glaze.

Tin House Cabernet Sauvignon will be served with a dessert of triple chocolate decadence cake.

Cost of the dinner is $60 per person and seating is limited to 50. For information or reservations, call 484-1814.

The Gem Restaurant, owned and managed by Albert Steel and Katherine Bryant, is located on San Carlos between Ocean and Seventh Avenue. Steel said they "give a generous pour" at their winemaker's dinners.

Editorial

A flattened snake and a protected frog

LAST WEEK, the nation was handed another reason to laugh at California when it was revealed that the Bay Area Rapid Transit District decided to compensate contractors $1.07 million for construction delays at the San Francisco airport BART station.

The contractors were due the money, officials decided, after being ordered by the California Department of Fish and Game to halt work for 18 days while wildlife officials tried to figure out who ran over a snake.

The snake, a San Francisco garter snake, was killed by an unknown perpetrator at the job site last spring. The snake is on the state's endangered species list — nevertheless, more than $1 million for a single specimen seemed a bit high to some commentators, who derided the whole situation as a bizarre waste of taxpayer dollars, especially since the SFO rapid transit project already includes extensive wildlife and habitat rehabilitation and protection measures. The ill-fated snake, it seems, used a rodent's burrow to make its way under a special fence designed to keep the reptiles away from heavy equipment working nearby.

Whether or not the money should have been spent in an effort to identify the guilty snake squasher is certainly a fair question for debate. But we think the $1 million garter snake also stands out as an example of the right way to pay for environmental protection — by sharing the bill among taxpayers and the public, instead of demanding payment from an unlucky few.

Recent moves by federal wildlife officials to protect the California red legged frog provide an opposite illustration — showing the wrong way to foot the bill for protecting an endangered species.

The regrettable fact that the red legged frog is endangered came about because innumerable frogs were wiped out and their habitat paved over during decades of rapid growth and unfettered development in this state. But are the people who caused and benefited from all that development being asked to pay for the frog's protection now? No.

Instead, by declaring millions of acres of California — including all of Carmel Valley — as "critical habitat" for the red legged frog, wildlife officials force just a few people (the ones who want to build now or in the future) to bear the burden of fixing a problem they did not create.

In fact, by waiting to develop their land, these property owners have actually been the frog's best friends.

Consider September Ranch on Carmel Valley Road: Its 891 acres have been left virtually untouched for decades while the Morgens family has owned them, providing an unspoiled haven for red legged frogs and all other wild creatures that call Carmel Valley home. Meanwhile, next door at Del Mesa Carmel, dozens of condos long ago wiped out the frogs' homes on much of that land, thereby helping push the critters to a state of near extinction.

But the way our backwards habitat-protection policies work, the owners of September Ranch (if they ever try again to develop their land) will have to make sure their project protects the frog and its habitat, no matter what the cost. Meanwhile, Del Mesa Carmel residents won't have to lift a finger to undo the habitat destruction that made their driveways, living rooms and kitchens possible.

The fair way to protect the frog's habitat would be to collect a special "frog tax" from everybody who lived in Carmel Valley when the red-legged frog was listed as endangered. The money could be used to buy up land for the frog and to compensate johnny-come-latelys who will have to cut back or give up their plans for a home or a vineyard because of what other people did before the government discovered that the frog was in trouble.

The BART board of directors apparently understood that the public must be willing to pay for protecting the environment and endangered species. Sticking it to newcomers simply isn't fair.

Want to learn more about the California red legged frog? The Carmel River Watershed Council will host a workshop on Nov. 4 at the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club. A tour of frog habitat will follow on Nov. 10. Call 659-1760 for info and reservations.

Leak and an oak

Dear Editor,

For the last 6 months, I have been on the lookout for sudden oak death in Carmel Valley. For the last month or two, I noticed a particular coast live oak along the south side of the Carmel Valley Road that was not looking well. In the last two weeks, I noticed it had assumed a characteristic of sudden oak death; every leaf on the entire tree was suddenly dead and brown. So today, I pulled over on the Garland View Stables Rd., about 200 feet east of the dead tree, parked and walked back to investigate. As I walked to the tree, I heard water gurgling. The tree stem is about 15 feet below the road berm, at the edge of a pasture. Water was flowing rapidly around both sides of the 10" diameter stem. There were no cankers, and no evidence of SOD. That was a welcome bit of good news.

But this struck me as a great deal of water. Judging by the large patch of mature wetland vegetation growing in the pasture below the tree, it has been flowing for some time. Indeed, the tree started looking stressed a month or more earlier. It has evidently drowned.

With the thousands of vehicles passing every day, I find it odd that no one stopped to look. Might this be a leak in the Cal-Am water system? I don't think we have a free-flowing spring there in the Carmel Valley. If it is a leak in the water system, it has been going on for a very long time. You would think Cal-Am would miss that amount of water. But worse; you would think someone would notice.

How can so many people drive by such a flow of water for so long? Is there anyone out there who is still seeing our bit of the natural world? Anyone else just a bit curious about what is going on outside the windshield? Or is it just that stopping and getting out of that luxury leather seat is just too "dangerous"? We all live in this watershed and we all need to be aware of and conserve our resources. But first, I suppose, we need to recognize them and when they have a problem.

Keep your eyes open for SOD; anyone mously heavy, and even a small piece can weigh many pounds."

While taking care of their own safety, workers must also be careful not to damage the street, the power lines or any of the equipment below while lowering the pieces to the ground, according to Branson.

After cutting the trees down, crews will remove the stumps and most of the root structure, and then repair the drainage channel along Fourth Avenue accordingly.

The city forester has yet to develop a plan for reforestation in the area, though the environmental study approved by the city earlier this year suggested replanting at a 3:1 ratio.

"We would like to have taller trees, with the stature of eucalyptus but not the risk they pose," Branson said. But power lines in the area will dictate what is planted where to ensure the utility companies don't have to top the taller trees.

The removal comes after years of requests by Fourth Avenue residents who insisted the aged trees were a threat to their safety and homes. Recognizing the urgency of the matter, the Carmel Planning Commission recommended last May that the city council approve the initial study/negative declaration and move ahead with the project. The Carmel City Council certified the study in July and allocated funds for the removal, and awarded Iverson the job two months later.

Not everyone is happy with the plans, however: Police received reports last week of someone scribbling "shame" and "killers" on the eucalyptus tree stumps.

Only later, off camera, did they dig holes and cavort in fun-loving fashion with a group of beach dogs sucked in by their animal magnetism.

These tri-color Burmese mountain dogs are a husband and wife team who produced a litter of eight puppies last year, all of whom have found loving homes. A party was held recently at the Carmel Valley Community Park for their collective first birthdays. Only one of the pups, who now lives in Montana, was unable to fly in for the celebration.

Mom Tina brings the couple to Carmel Beach four or five times a week, believing in having Hennessy and Willow socialize with other beach-goers of all

Smaller house gets planning commission thumbs-up

By MARY BROWNFIELD

RICK KASHFI'S plans for a new one-story home where a two-story house now stands received unanimous approval from the Carmel Planning Commission last week. Last month, the commission sent project designer Darren Davis back to the drawing board with orders to simplify the home's exterior by reducing wall "breakups" and complex roof lines, and by removing bay windows, dormers and skylights.

"We cleaned up some of the lines and roof forms," Davis explained to the commission.

His design calls for demolishing the existing two-story house on Santa Rita between Second and Third avenues and replacing it with an 1,800-square-foot single-story house to be used by Kashfi's parents, according to the applicant.

Planning staff also requested the designer replace the oriel window at the front of the house with a flat window, but Davis requested permission to include it.

"We would like to keep it but, whatever," he said. "If we're not going to get approval without removing it then we'll get rid of the damn window."

That offer turned out to be unnecessary.

"I think it's obviously such a great improvement over what's on the lot now," commissioner Bart Bartron said. "I think for the most part the designer and the applicant have really met the concerns that were raised at the last hearing. I don't really understand the objection to the oriel window."

Commissioner Robin Wilson agreed, moving approval of the design concept.

Poised to request removal of the oriel window, chair Frank Wasko changed his mind and voted in support of the project.

"Staff's explanation for being able to take the gable roof off by eliminating the oriel window kind of persuaded me," he said. "But I am re-persuaded by my fellow commissioners."

Kashfi will have to return for review of the final details of the project, including a complete landscape plan.

CARMEL'S HISTORIC STRUCTURES

Editor's note: Last month, preservation specialist Kent Seavey submitted his report on the city's historic buildings, which includes 223 structures — from humble cottages to the majestic Carmel Mission Basilica. The following is a complete list of the historic buildings in Seavey's report. (Because Carmel has no addresses, the buildings are listed by assessor's parcel number. Homeowners unsure of their APN can get it by checking their property's tax bill or by calling the assessor's office at 647-7719.) The letters following some dates denote "E" for estimated and "F" for factual.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of dogs out of control on Carmel Beach. Resident reported a male adult in his 50s walks on the beach every Saturday between 11 a.m. and noon with a golden retriever and a yellow Lab. The golden goes after young dogs and becomes very aggressive toward them. Lab causes no problems. Man is always on the beach below Del Mar and parks in that lot. Caller will call CPD Saturday if she sees the man and his two dogs. Day Watch may want to contact Monterey County Animal Control to advise them of this problem.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Driver contacted regarding child being in unapproved safety seat. Approved child safety seat was in use.

Carmel Valley: Deputies responded around 1700 hours to a report of shots fired in the area of Carmel Valley Road between Cachagua and Tassajara roads. Investigation determined that a 47-year-old Carmel Valley resident was riding his bicycle along the road when a car stopped alongside the roadway and one of the occupants fired a handgun at him. The shot missed him. Occupants in a passing vehicle also saw the suspects and car, which then sped away eastbound on Carmel Valley Road. Deputies from King City Station spotted the car on Arroyo Seco Road and stopped the car at Thorne Road near Greenfield. The

EURICH ON REAL ESTATE

If you're thinking about buying a home, don't put it off. Today's fixed-rate 30-year mortgages are in the 6.5% range, and that's not high by historical standards. But there are also mortgages available with significantly lower interest rates. And that translates into lower payments, or at least more home for your money.

Walter Eurich

Financing that eases housing payments

Many home buyers save money by using adjustable-rate mortgages. One-year ARMs are often about 1.75% to 2% lower than 30-year fixed rate mortgages. Buyers who use ARMs know their payments will rise if interest rates rise, but the rate usually can't go up more than 2% a year, and if interest rates fall, the payments can decrease.

Most ARMs adjust their rates every year, but a few adjust rates as often as every month, while others may change every three, five, or seven years. There's even an ARM that waits 10 years to change. In general, the shorter the interval of time between adjustments, the lower the interest rate, because lenders run less risk of being saddled with low-interest loans if rates go up.

All ARMs are keyed to some easily checked index that moves with interest rates. Two commonly used indices are treasury securities and the costs of funds for financial institutions.

Among fixed-rate mortgages, shorter term loans are now available in 10, 15, 20, and 25-year lengths — and these also have somewhat lower rates than 30-year fixed-rate mortgages.

Before you buy a home, check your options carefully. You may be able to buy a better home than you think.

As a real estate professional, I'm dedicated to helping you to meet your real estate goals in any way I can. If you need real estate information or assistance in selling your existing home or finding a new home, please call me at 831-622-4875. There's no obligation for a consultation.
